

We are looking for Local Environmental Leaders

Have you done any of the following?

- Reduced chemical or fertilizer use on your property
- Planted buffer strips around watercourses
- Decommissioned an abandoned well
- Taken actions to protect groundwater in your community

If you answered yes to any of these questions you are an excellent candidate to become an environmental leader in your community.

If you think you are an environmental leader, we want to hear from you. We would like to use your projects as examples of the many great things people in your community are doing voluntarily to protect drinking water sources.

Why should you become an environmental leader?

- Share your experiences with others. Maybe you have advice to offer others interested in similar projects.
- You can be very influential in your community. If your neighbours see that people in their community are taking action, they might jump on the bandwagon. It just takes one person to get the ball rolling.
- Now, not only have you undertaken a great project yourself, but you will be encouraging others to do the same. In the end you will have had a tremendous positive impact on the environment around you.

How do you become an environmental leader?

- It's simple. Just let us know you are interested.
- We will come to your property, take photos of your project, and prepare a brief profile.
- Your project will be posted online for others to see. You will be helping to show how easy it is to make a difference.
- You will be provided with a yard sign to show others in your community that you have taken positive early actions to protect everyone's drinking water.

If you're interest in becoming an environmental leader and show casing your projects, contact Dallas or Chris at (519) 335-3557.
